A Bipartisan Victory for Local Communities: House Passes Boebert’s Zip Code Bill

The House passed Congresswoman Boebert's bipartisan bill fixing long-standing postal identity issues for more than 65 communities nationwide. Residents in Lone Tree, Highlands Ranch, and Castle Pines have long shared ZIP codes with neighboring cities — costing Lone Tree alone an estimated $5 million annually in misdirected sales tax revenue,² plus higher insurance costs and slower emergency response. The fix keeps tax dollars local to better fund roads, public safety, and essential services.

“The City of Castle Pines is grateful for Congresswoman Boebert’s tireless efforts to secure a unique zip code for Castle Pines and dozens of communities across the nation,” said Castle Pines Mayor Tracy Engerman. “The passage of this bill by the House is a significant step in ensuring that residents in our communities receive their fair share of collected tax revenue and timely responses from emergency services. The Congresswoman’s ability to work across the aisle on this bipartisan effort has been critical in moving the bill to the Senate. On behalf of the National Zip Code Advocacy Coalition, I want to thank her for her support and work on this important issue.”
